WHAT IS NATIONAL CHILD DEVELOPMENT COUNCIL (NCDC) ?

National Child Development Council (NCDC) is a self governing National Child Welfare Organization established to promote Women and Child Welfare and ensure Child Education in India. To promote scientific and psychologically molded child education on par with international standards and specifications, various recognized courses are being conducted 2005 onwards under the auspices of National Child Development Council. NCDC is also a Participant of United Nations Global Compact, New York, USA and an ISO 9001: 2015 Certified organization with head office at New Delhi, India.

What is the Validity of these Courses?

All these courses are ISO 9001:2015 certified, internationally recognized, 100% job oriented & quality assured.

Certificate is issued by National Child Development Council (NCDC) New Delhi (A New Delhi based leading national child welfare organisation).

Our Courses follow a Scientifically Developed, Psychologically Moulded, Child Centred, Sense & Activity Oriented Central Govt.'s most modern Curriculum & New International Method of Training.

What are the job opportunities of these Courses?

Thousands of ladies have successfully completed the courses and are currently employed at many leading institutions in India and abroad. This new generation, 100% job oriented and internationally recognized courses offer job opportunities in India and abroad. NCDC has a career guidance and placement division to assist the students to find suitable placements and to give guidance to start self-employment programs.

What are the Extra benefits from the Courses?

As the course is designed and moulded according to the Central Government's new education policy, it is learner centred, activity oriented and sense based. Hence it will be an interesting experience for the trainees. These life giving and lively courses help the learners to get rid of idleness and show the way to become successful in life. The courses are so simple and noble that by the time of course completion they will become role models for others with their refined character and behaviour. All courses are ISO 9001: 2015 Certified and students' progress is monitored by means of Periodic Quality Assessment Test (PQAT). Qualified and NCDC Trained Faculties will handle the theory and practical sessions. Joining an NCDC course is itself an act of benevolence and charity. All the surplus money is spent on charity. Thus, your life and learning too can bring smiles on thousand faces.

What is Montessori education? What are its benefits?

The Montessori education system is the most modern, scientific and internationally accepted method of child education. It is an educational system designed to aid the children in the development of intelligence and independence. The key elements of the Montessori methods are self-education, individual instruction, didactic apparatus, a specially prepared environment and the trained director/adult. Most of the leading nations of world follows this system. Thousands of schools in India too have adopted this method of training. Understanding its importance and benefits, education bodies like CBSE are getting in to this system. Montessori training offers ever increasing job opportunities. NCDC's Montessori Training Program combines quality training and international recognition.

As the world as a whole is getting into this system of education, this course offers greater scope. Montessori trainees are given preference in other schools also. As the CIPE curriculum too is included in this course, those who successfully complete the course can also work in other schools all over the world. Montessori Practical Apparatus consists of Practical life, Sensorial, Language, Mathematical and other sciences.

Five Factors That Make Montessori Education Different From Traditional Education:

Study Environment: The study environment of Montessori education is designed according to the individual needs of the students like Montessori materials and furniture are ergonomically planned, aligned with children's growth. The ideal environment is having fascinating wall pictures, vibrant paints, abundant work stations, tables and floor rugs where toddlers and children can play and learn using various materials.

Active Learning: Montessori education aims to make active learners. The infants & kids get to learn lessons through joyful hands-on learning experiments. Thus a Montessori training program is a must for teachers to help students explore new ways of learning through observation and practically doing the class activity. Active student participation helps children learn skills of resolving problems peacefully. In regular teacher training, training is provided for a teacher to orate the planned lessons to the students who need to listen passively & memorise it.

Giving them their Time: Children in Montessori education are given tasks to be accomplished in indefinite time as long as they need, without teacher's interruption though under supervision. This aspect of Montessori teaching fosters development of children's mental growth and gives them a sense of pride in accomplishing a task by them. Montessori teacher training gives a teacher the skill of mentoring a kid to complete his assigned work without the help of others, giving them the required time they need, thus developing a child's cognitive behaviour. In traditional classroom teaching, students are bound by a set time frame within which they have to finish their allocated task.

The Role of the Teacher: In case of Montessori education, teachers recognize the emotional aspect of a child and act as guides to them, giving individualised attention to each student, helping the kids to develop on their own learning path. Teachers move around in the classroom, providing ideas, suggestions to kids with the aim of providing an individualised learning plan to each student. In the traditional teaching system, the role of a teacher is limited to offering lessons on a scheduled basis. Teachers deliver a planned lesson at a speed which a kid may not be able to keep track with.

Interest in Learning: The Montessori curriculum teaching has the ability to make learning interesting for kids and toddlers. Children in Montessori schools learn by touching and handling ergonomically designed study materials. A Montessori teacher's job is to gently guide the kids on how to use the materials thus, children learn to love learning. Traditional school requires students to listen passively to teachers and a student's potential is judged by his test performance.
